①

Thank you for continuing to read my series (Even if you only read it in a magazine). My name is Wakase Yuu, evolving from a monkey to a human being. What am I saying?!

Here we are with volume 2 of Zoku Shushuri! Miman Okohowari. Maybe you wonder: "But Wakase, what a strange idea to continue drawing this story?" In the previous volume, I wrote in a column that a survey concerning my series turned out very positive, but this happened only once. That was a stroke of luck. After that, I didn't ask for another one since I was afraid. I don't even dare to tell you like: Youko: "Hohoho? You have to read my story!" When I got used to drawing these characters and pictured other adventures for them, my editor told me: "It's over." (I was disgusted!) But since I was too sad, I insisted on the continuation of the prepublication. It was an experience in order to know where I was able to go. I feared that nobody would read it because the series had already come to an end once, but my editor accepted to make a new book out of it, out of pity or maybe because I fought valiantly.

This experience shows you that in order to become a mangaka you need strength of character. You need to be able to take it all in your stride!! Be motivated!! (But what am I babbling about?!)

This time I prepared "free talks" on purpose because following volume 1, I received letters from readers complaining about the lack of them before.

Ah, don't take these texts too seriously. These are only "free talks"!!

Concerning the regrets tied to the publication of the anthology, my old drawings are also published in volume 3 of the first series. After their publication, I received many letters telling me "This looks similar to a certain manga". That wasn't done on purpose and I wish to apologize to the author of this manga. I had no ill intentions (But anyway, I don't think he's going to read these lines. Boohooo!) By the way, Asuka was inspired by Youko Minami. Since the time I saw her in the series "Suikoban Deka", I told myself "that's her!" This has been a revelation for me. "Long hair, a pupil's uniform (with a red school tie and leather boots) and gang leader" I thought about it night and day (Liar!), but I wasn't able to do a drawing resembling Youko Minami. In addition, over the years, I've forgotten little by little what she looks like. If you don't believe me, watch closely! The design of the school uniform is very similar.

I come back to what I said previously. At that time, I was also shocked when I saw this famous manga. Yes, yes. After the release of Fushigi Yuugi's first volume, I received letters telling me "don't worry". But I did. I was mistaken to publish these disgraceful drawings!! But I liked them much. If this topic's origin wouldn't go back to my adolescence, this shameful subject wouldn't exist.
